Sigmon Taylor Photography is essentially divided up as a commercial photography studio and a retail portrait studio. Yes ... it fits together and it works smoothly together.

In both the commercial market and the retail portrait world, our studio strives to create products, capture images and deliver finished portraits that are emotional, story-telling, visually interesting and photographed in a manner that is unique to our studio.

We want to create an experience that no-one else can.

In order to survive in today's marketplace, you must provide an experience that is second to none, and images that are unrivaled.

Don't miss this rare opportunity to join us for East Coast School as we share how we market our business and develop our brand. You'll learn how to create a foundation of lighting knowledge so that you will be able to tackle any lighting situation - indoors or out - with confidence.

This highly interactive class will include lighting demonstrations, location portraits and hands on opportunities. You will see how we approach the business and art of photography with fun and flair.
